The organization grappled with a pressing business problem as users faced difficulties in locating critical documents dispersed across a multitude of systems, including SAP, SuccessFactors, Jobvite, and physical paper files. Compounding this issue was the absence of a defined SAP Data Strategy, leaving the organization without a clear framework for managing its data assets.

Furthermore, the lack of retention compliance within SAP posed significant legal risks, putting the organization in a precarious position. To exacerbate matters, their existing data management solution, OpenText, remained underutilized, preventing them from harnessing its full potential.
